Shades of Summer:

Discover ParkLands Juried Watercolor Exhibition

47th Annual Meeting — Exciting Event at New Venue

This year, ParkLands Foundation is doing something new and different for our Annual Meeting. We have partnered with the McLean County Arts Center to co-sponsor and host "Shades of Summer: Discover ParkLands", a juried watercolor exhibition celebrating the beauty of the ParkLands preserves.

Details about how to enter the exhibition competition can be found at www.mcac.org (the artist application deadline is Friday, Aug. 30).

To give ParkLands members a private viewing of the watercolor exhibition, we will hold our 2013 Annual Membership Meeting at the McLean County Arts Center, 601 N. East Street, Bloomington.

The meeting will begin at 12:00 p.m. on Sunday, September 22. A picnic lunch with a choice of several box lunches prepared by the Garlic Press will be served, followed by the Annual Meeting at about 1:00 p.m. Members may stay after the meeting to view the watercolor exhibition. To make reservations for the lunch, please complete the form on page 2 and mail it so it will arrive no later than September 9th.

ParkLands' Financial Future — Development Report

The majority of ParkLands Board of Directors and several guests met for a charrette—an intensive planning meeting—on July 16 at Lancaster's Restaurant to discuss the new ParkLands Development Committee and development directions for the foundation.

To begin the meeting, President Todd Bugg addressed three priorities—increased membership, accumulation of a land fund to allow purchase of natural properties with participating grants, and sufficient annual funding to cover administrative expenses. There was general agreement on these priorities. The group determined that administrative expenses should be covered through annual receipts, instead of establishing another endowment.

The group spent a good deal of time addressing property maintenance and restoration needs. Members of the Stewardship Committee discussed the appropriate annual expenditures for property maintenance, including the salary and benefits for Land Steward Jason Shoemaker and the cost of several summer interns. Although ParkLands now has approximately $1.1 million in endowments dedicated to stewardship activities, as well as pasture/crop rent payment and government conservation program payment, the foundation needs an additional $2 million in endowments to create enough revenue to cover yearly stewardship maintenance expenses.

In addition, there was consensus among those involved with stewardship that ParkLands will need to raise $1 million in new funds and grants over the next decade to restore all of its properties to "good" condition, generally meaning removal of invasive species and initial efforts to reestablish native plants.

To reach the acquisition and stewardship goals of ParkLands, the Development Committee will undertake a capital campaign in the next year or two, with an emphasis on contacts with members, local businesses, and the community at large (fundraising efforts with local businesses, large and small, has been lacking in the past). The campaign will focus on present giving as well as long-term commitments to ParkLands through estate planning with hopes of increasing endowments for stewardship and acquisition of properties.

The participants also suggested that the Development Committee begin an annual campaign with a focus on bridging the gap of approximately $25,000 per year between current receipts from memberships and other sources and the administrative expenses of ParkLands Foundation.

ParkLands will recruit ParkLands directors, members and community leaders to serve on the Development Committee and to assist in its various tasks over the coming years. If you are interested in assisting, please contact the ParkLands office at PO Box 3132, Bloomington, IL 61702-3132 or parklandsoffice@gmail.com.
